Our stakeholder engagement

Shaping the sustainability agenda

With the scientific resources and knowledge at our disposal, DSM has a unique opportunity right now to influence and shape the sustainability agenda. But of course we cannot do it alone. We encourage our people to get involved in sustainability on a personal level through their professional and personal networks; while on an organizational level we work a hugely diverse range of like-minded people - from the United Nations, to governments, NGOs, academia and other private companies.

Stakeholder organizations

As the voice of the European chemical industry, Cefic (European Association of Chemical Companies) represents the 29,000 chemical companies in Europe, interacting on their behalf with international and EU institutions, non-governmental organisations, the international media, and other stakeholders.
